1LDU is the name under which Ildelfons Alonso Valls presents his solo live electronica project — a collision of joyful and melancholic impulses, held together by relentless groove and fractured by polyrhythm. His proposal moves between open, breathing spaces and moments of dense, concentrated energy — always in motion, never predictable. At the core of 1LDU is performance: entirely improvised, built in real time, unrepeatably by design. The set is built from the ground up. Bass that anchors, rhythms that collide, harmony that drifts and disappears. Each performance moves the audience through sound, pulling them into the drive of the music.

Ildefons Alonso Valls is a Barcelona-based musician, producer, and performer with over 15 years of experience. Trained in Jazz Drumming and Composition at the Royal Academy of Music in London and Classical Piano at ESMUC in Barcelona, he has worked across jazz, pop, and electronic music — as a solo artist, as a collaborator, and as a producer and recording engineer with a prolific output across multiple projects and releases. 1LDU has performed across clubs and venues in Spain, France, and Germany. 1LDU is his most focused work to date: a live practice built around improvisation, polyrhythm, and the physicality of performance.
